there are extensive discussions between deutsch and notorious anti-gay and anti-trans "experts" associated with known hate groups targeting transgender healthcare in the united states, including dr. quentin l. van meter and dr. michelle cretella of the catholic medical association, dr. andre van mol of the christian medical & dental associations and american college of pediatricians, dr. michael k. laidlaw of the kelsey coalition, dr. william j. malone of the society for evidence-based gender medicine, dr. paul w. hrnz of the national catholic bioethics center, laura haynes of narth, and deacon dr. patrick w. lappert of catholic reparative therapy group courage international. participants discuss crafting their language to avoid acknowledging that transgender people exist, constructing new ways to define doctors as criminals for providing gender-affirming care, and targeting a federal agency publication that correctly points out the dangers of anti-gay conversion therapy, their emails frequently digress into personal vendettas and ambitions of destroying established professional groups such as the endocrine society, and they typically celebrate their anti-trans legal and political achievements as a victory of the christian god.

the emails describe a wider national effort against transition treatment for minors, which included discussions with idaho rep. julianne young and sen. steve vick, georgia rep. gimmy carhart, and florida rep. anthony sabatini. several anti-lgbt conservative legal groups are intimately involved in the discussion, including alliance defending freedom, adf-affiliated detransitioners haesi horvath and walt heyer, eunie smith of eagle forum, adf-linked attorney vernadette r. broyles of the child & parental rights campaign, jane robbins of the american principles project, kara dansky and natasha chart of women's liberation front, richard mast of liberty counsel, and emily zinos of minnesota family council and hands across the aisle. more recently, the transphobia-captured state of alabama harassed the endocrine society and wpath with subpoenas for their internal communications regarding hate groups and individuals participating in the deutsch emails, including segun, the american college of pediatricians, michael laidlaw, william malone, andre van mol, michelle cretella, and quentin van meter, the release of the deutsch emails is in the public interest and brings an equivalent level of transparency to the internal work of these major anti-trans advocacy and lobbying groups.

Findings and Order

After hearing evidence and argument of Counsel, THE COURT FINDS that Dr. Quentin L. Van Meter, M.D., is discredited as an expert to give testimony in this cause on his opinions regarding the legal question of whether an adolescent transgender child should be administered puberty blockers and whether affirmation of an incongruent gender in a child is harmful or not.

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that Dr. Quentin L. Van Meter, M.D. shall not be allowed to give any testimony in this cause as an expert and Dr. Quentin L. Van Meter, M.D. is hereby struck as an expert witness in this cause.

Hi Jamie,

So great to connect with you just now on Twitter. CC'd on this email is my friend Kara Dansky who coordinates media for and is on the board of Women's Liberation Front. She is an attorney here in Washington, DC, was one of the feminists on the Heritage panel in late January that you referenced in your recent interview with Laura Ingraham, and is one of the most articulate people I know who gets the gender identity issue inside and out, especially as it pertains to law and public policy.

The article you penned in the Daily Signal this week was quite compelling. I'll be sending you a subsequent email, but I'll let you and Kara take it from here and chat.

ACLU of South Dakota opposes House Bill 1057

The ACLU of South Dakota opposes House Bill 1057, a bill that would criminalize doctors for providing medically necessary care for transgender youth.

The bill, which was introduced Tuesday, would make it a felony for medical providers to treat youth consistent with evidence-based treatment protocols. HB 1057 continues the streak of bills that would codify discrimination against transgender youth that the South Dakota Legislature has attempted to pass over the last five years.

Like all health care, health care for transgender youth is individualized and based on the needs of each particular person. This bill would take away private health care choices around the provision of medical care consistent with prevailing medical and scientific standards. Such choices should be made between a doctor and a patient, not politicians.

Like transgender kids, like all kids, deserve a chance to experience joy, to learn in a safe environment, to get the health care that they need, and to survive into adulthood. It said Libby Skarin, policy director for the ACLU of South Dakota. "If the government proposes laws that would stigmatize them and undermine their care, they lose those opportunities."

By blocking medical care supported by every major medical association, including the American Academy of Pediatrics and the American Medical Association, the legislature is compromising the health of trans youth in dangerous and potentially life-threatening ways. Research shows that transgender youth whose families affirm their gender identity have a 52 percent decrease in suicidal thoughts, a 48 percent decrease in suicide attempts and significant increases in self-esteem and general health.

After talking with Stephen Smith last night I have determined that the best way to counter the arguments raised in the lawsuit is the most some additional language into our legislative intent, rather than addressing another section of code. My additions are highlighted below. Your feedback is sincerely appreciated.
The legislature finds a compelling interest in maintaining accurate, quantitative, biology-based statistics on birth certificates of birth which provide vital statistics fundamental to the performance of government functions that secure the public health and safety, including, but not limited to, identifying public health trends, assessing risk, conducting criminal investigations, and helping individuals determine their biological lineage, citizenship, or susceptibility to genetic disorders, and
The equality clause prohibits purposeful discrimination and not facially neutral laws of general applicability such as a biology-based definition of sex

Decades of court opinion have upheld the argument that the biological distinctions between male and female birth requires but equal treatment under the law and a defined category of sex which falls in the only category which can be demonstrated to be stable, immutable, and distinguishable individually.
The additional nature of biological sex significantly impacts the rights of others and would constitute a marked violation in undermining the legitimacy of many policies which have been advanced to secure the privacy and essential interests of individuals specific to their biological sex.
The nature of biological sex negatively impacts the health and safety of all individuals. For example, the Society for Evidence-Based Gender Medicine has declared that "the conflation of sex and gender in healthcare is alarming and poses a direct threat to patient health." Research, transgender care, transgender-working individuals or unintended medical harm from non-evidence-based diagnosis and being subjected to incorrect treatments. It will also greatly impede scientific research, not only in the of transgender medicine, which is being largely impeded in some medical settings, but also in other areas of medical research.
Vital statistics is defined in Idaho Code Section 39-241(21) as "data" (being the plural of "datum") which is a known fact, and Biology certificates of birth are of an evidentiary character and prima facie evidence of the facts recited therein (Code Section 39-274), and Age and Sex, unless the names of natural parents whose rights have been terminated, are legally applicable facts fundamental to the performance of public and private public and contracts.
The failure to maintain accurate, quantitative vital statistics and legal definitions upon which government and others may with confidence rely constitutes a breach of the public trust, and
The legislature has a compelling interest in maintaining the public trust and confidence and a duty to fulfill, to the best of its ability, those functions

Looks great! My only concern is with the quote from SEGM. Will, would you consider this? First, the reference to "cisgender identifying individuals." I believe there is only to make this point, without using a word like "cis" which indirectly endorses the ideology upon which transgender identities are based.
My other suggestion with the quote is to add non-binary. Even though transgender has become an umbrella term covering both, some non-binary individuals do not say they are transgender. Many forms offer both categories for people to check when they identify themselves.
I would consider rewording this - something like "cis and non-binary individuals, but ALL persons" as well as add a reference to "transitory" ->C

Attorney Richard Mast of Liberty Counsel then says that SEGM shouldn't even say "transgender". Malone obliges and offers an updated quote on behalf of SEGM, which no longer says "transgender" or "cisgender". That was the final version in the bill (<https://legislature.idaho.gov/wp-content/uploads/sessioninfo/2020/legislation/H0509.pdf>)

I agree with removing the SEGM quote from the bill. I do not know if the Society for Evidence-Based Gender Medicine is an org with the same or as high of a reputation as Liberty Counsel. I would be very wary of them saying anything regarding TG, CG or "non-binary," and perhaps have a conversation with them if that idea.
I would not want to see anyone on our side intentionally put those terms into the record. Using them undermines the language. Language frames the Florida has good jury verdicts, and that is what you want if you are going to persuade doctors to practice sound medicine. I am looking at a few different attorneys who have had success in medical malpractice jury cases. I'll narrow it down and then try to put you in touch with the top pick.

In the meantime, allow me to tell why I am motivated to help you and explain how and why I'd like to be involved in the litigation. I am a faithful Catholic who tries to use my legal skill to build the kingdom of God while at the same time, supporting my family. In addition to my law practice, I write, teach, and speak about the culture, faith, and the law as much as I can. My law practice has evolved to being primarily a litigation practice. I handle injury cases, medical malpractice (med Mal), contract disputes, construction cases, and agricultural litigation. If your case were in Nebraska, I'd probably want to file it for you.

I'm not licensed in Florida, but even so, I'd like to be the lead attorney on your case, which is possible when a local attorney serves as co-counsel. This does not mean that you would pay her or more attorneys though. There is still one contingent fee, and it is the same percentage of the overall verdict or settlement. Med Mal contingent fees are usually about 50% of the verdict or settlement. They are high because the cases are difficult to win. This is the case even when they seem like they should be easy. If we can find a skilled attorney in Florida, your fees would still only be 50%. It is possible that the contingent fees in Florida med Mal cases are less than 50%. I'm okay with whatever the local practice is. If it is 40%, 35%, whatever. The good news is, you generally know if you have a good med Mal case pretty early in the process.

I want to be the lead attorney for three main reasons: 1. Some excellent trial attorneys do not understand the cultural and/or religious implications of some cases. They fail to make some persuasive arguments because they don't know any better. I have experience making arguments based on science, statistics, ethics, and religion, when appropriate. 2. I am convinced that gender ideology is deadly. It is deadly to the individual and it is deadly to the culture. Many attorneys are not going to feel that way, but some might take your case anyway because they see the potential for a large verdict and publicity. If they are not as certain about the evil of gender ideology, they may not be as thorough and aggressive as they would otherwise be in a typical med Mal case. I think I can fit in that gap should it occur, even though we'd be looking for local counsel who is not simply looking for a large paycheck. 3. Your case is going to need some medical expert testimony. As a Catholic, and a Catholic who has some connections within the Church nationally, I may have access to some experts who a non-Catholic and a non-Christian may not know. The experts may not be Catholic, but the only way we are likely to find them is through networking with Catholic physicians. The average psychologist, psychiatrist, or medical doctor is not going to want to lift a finger to help you. I think I could be a significant assistance to your case in this respect. Without experts who are willing to say that your doctors failed to provide the proper "standard of care", you have no case. We find this out early in the process. If a doc steps forward and says there was medical malpractice, we move forward. If nobody steps forward, we keep on looking.

But we can't keep looking forever. There is a statute of limitations on med Mal claims. In Nebraska, you have to make your claim within two years of the malpractice or the date when you had the capacity to understand it was malpractice. Florida appears to require it to be filed within two years, or in the case of fraud, 4 years. Either way, it is best to move quickly.

If this raises any questions or concerns for you, let me know and I'll do my best to respond. As soon as we have a meeting of the minds, I'll make some calls and see if we can get you in to see someone in the near future.

Bob S.

Sullivan continues: "The experts may not be Catholic, but the only way we are likely to find them is through networking with Catholic physicians. The average psychologist, psychiatrist, or medical doctor is not going to want to lift a finger to help you."

"If they are not as certain about the evil of gender ideology, they may not be as thorough and aggressive as they would otherwise be in a typical med Mal case."

Yes, we can pretty much guess what that study actually looked at and actually showed, but what is the citation anyway?
It's typical emotional blackmail and raises more questions than it answers.

As for quick replies (all bold highlighting is mine, otherwise quotes are quotes):

If their study they cite shows a 48% reduction in suicide attempts (like, what, one year out?):

A 2011 Swedish study of post-gender-reassignment adults showed a suicide rate 19 times (1,900%) that of the general population after 10 years. This was a 30-year population-based matched cohort study of all 324 sex-reassigned persons in Sweden.
(Dhejne C, et al, "Long-Term Follow-Up of Transsexual Persons Undergoing Sex Reassignment Surgery: Cohort Study in Sweden," Journals Plos.org, Feb. 22, 2011.)

Bailey and Blanchard: "There is no persuasive evidence that gender transition reduces gender dysphoric children's likelihood of killing themselves." "The idea that mental health problems including suicidality are caused by gender dysphoria rather than the other way around is currently popular and politically correct. It is, however, unproven and as likely to be false as true."
(J. Michael Bailey and Ray Blanchard, "Suicide or transition: The only options for gender dysphoric kids?" 4thwavenow.com, Sept. 8, 2017. <https://4thwavenow.com/2017/09/08/suicide-or-transition-the-only-options-for-gender-dysphoric-kids/>)

Paradox. The suicide rate for AVA in the non-affirming 1950s USA was much lower than it is now. For both sexes, it was only 4.5 suicides per 100,000 AVA. Peaked in 1994 with a combined rate of 13.6; declined slightly and then was more or less flat until 2011, when it began again to climb.
(Hasci Horvath, Dec. 19, 2018. <https://4thwavenow.com/2018/12/19/the-theatre-of-the-body-a-detransitioned-epidemiologist-examines-suicidality-affirmation-and-transgender-identity/>)

The point from Hasci is why weren't the 1950s a total blood bath for suicides if non-affirmation of everything is the fast train to offing one's self? Affirmation was about nil. For the past decade GLBT affirmation has steadily increased while suicides have too. What gives then?

Blanchard recommends age 21 for surgery.
<https://www.nationalreview.com/2019/05/19/ray-blanchard-transgender-orthodoxy/>

That said, have you read the 4thwave piece by those two about the different types of gender dysphoria/transsexuals?
<https://4thwavenow.com/2017/12/07/gender-dysphoria-is-not-one-thing/>

While the narrative is that sexual orientation and gender identity are two totally separate things, they're not easily untangled for a lot of folks. Even for the adult AGPs.

"Many heterosexual transsexuals hope that, after reassignment surgery, they will find themselves attracted to men and settle down with a male partner. Surgical sex reassignment has little impact on their sexual preference for women, however, and postoperative patients are equally or even more likely to become involved in "lesbian" relationships with biological females."
http://individual.utoronto.ca/ray_blanchar/GID_Men.pdf

So a lot of these kids can't unlink so-called gender identity and sexual orientation, supposedly two separate things. I still struggle with it too. But most importantly where I'm going with this is just being gay alone already brings a high suicide risk to the table, plenty of studies show that. Lesbian girls have the parental and societal backlash, the feminine gay boys have family societal and also rejection from the gay male community that shuns all things feminine. The gay boys Blanchard calls the homosexual transsexuals are literally channeled into sex changes.

So these things have to be figured into the trans suicide conversation, especially for young females. That might be a discussion for you pick Blanchard's brain about. I don't recommend the 4thwave folks because they get really testy about questioning anything gay-related, but I think you'd be remiss to not explore this link in such a paper.

Another area is the suicide risk merely because of being involved in an "alternate subculture." I'll show you this link and you can find lots more data about it in Google.
<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pubmed/29577344>

I'll close this one by admitting that suicide is a weapon. I say that not only because of my extensive reading on trans issues but firsthand experience as well. I've gotten to see it through two

I have sent the name of a pediatrician, psychologist and 3 therapists to the lobbyist at the FL Catholic Conference who is working w/ Rep. Sabatini (the lobbyist called me this AM).
I stressed the importance of reflecting the fact that this is "a movement whose time has come" and that this bill has "come about due to the passion of parents of children who have been harmed, de-transitioners, as well as attorneys and doctors across the nation".

Rep. Sabatini did not think to line up witnesses prior to filing which is unfortunate. Nevertheless, he believes that having medical and mental health witnesses will suffice to pass it out of this initial committee which is set to hear the bill either next Wed or Feb 4th. But once it passes out of that Health Quality Committee, I've urged them to get a diversity of witnesses as was achieved for SD.

Best,
Michelle

The judge in my case has a transgender kid. I believe that's the reason she issued the landmark court decision. She wasn't just validating me, she was doing the same for her child. I hope that nasty detail is finally going to get made public very soon. She should have recused herself because of that. I've provided reporters with my complete VA med records and an email from my lawyer about the judge's kid.

I believe there is way to make this point, without using a word like "cis" which indirectly endorses the ideology upon which transgender identities are based.

My other suggestion with the quote is to add non-binary. Even though transgender has become an umbrella term covering both, some nonbinary individuals do not say they are transgender. Many forms offer both categories for people to check when they identify themselves.

Will, could SEGM consider rewording this -- something like "not only transgender individuals, but ALL persons" as well as add a reference to nonbinary? -RC

AllBC

I would strongly recommend that the phrase "separate but equal" not appear anywhere in any public or legislative documents.

My recommended alternative language:

Biological distinctions between male and female are a matter of scientific fact and biological sex is an objectively defined category which has obvious, immutable, and distinguishable characteristics

Or something similar.

Although it doesn't appear here, I would also say for future reference that we shouldn't use the phrase "sex-segregated" when referring to spaces dedicated to one sex or the other. "Sex-specific" usually works.

I don't think I need to outline the reasons that we should avoid the above phrases.

Thanks for all your work on this crucial issue!

Abstract
Since the establishment of the first transgender clinic in the United States in 2002, over sixty clinics associated with children's hospitals have opened across the nation and are seeing very young children and adolescents with a diagnosis of gender dysphoria (GD). Once known as gender identity disorder, GD has been redefined by the latest version of the Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders, 5th edition (DSM-5) not as a mental illness but as the distress experienced by individuals related to their biological sex. The widely accepted practice of gender-affirming therapy (GAT) to treat a vulnerable population despite the associated health risks, the lack of supportive scientific evidence for the pharmacological and surgical interventions, along with the unqualified claim that these interventions will decrease the risk of suicide in these individuals presents a significant bioethical dilemma. The growing trend of GD not only impacts the individuals diagnosed but also society, culture, and the integrity of the profession of medicine. This article utilizes the five-line method, an ethical decision-making framework, to address the implications of the proposed treatment. Once applied, it becomes clear that the hormonal and surgical approaches used are not scientifically or ethically justified. The patient's autonomy and preferences should be respected, yet considered, if there exists a considerable risk to the well-being of the individual without proven benefits. The quality of life of those receiving this treatment has not been shown to be significantly improved long term, and the mental, physical, and spiritual health of individuals with GD is not thoroughly addressed in these clinics. The important social and contextual factors, on both macroscopic and microcosmic scales, are minimized in favor of promoting an ideology. Ultimately, Catholic moral teaching reveals that this widely recommended treatment violates the body-and-soul, disregards the principle of totality and integrity, and debases the dignity of humanity.

Summary: This article examines GAT, the paradigm used in treating individuals identifying as transgender, through the lens of an IDEM. Each stage of this widely proposed treatment – social affirmation, subglottal blocks, administration of cross-sex hormones, and sex reassignment surgery – poses harms and risks that are not fully disclosed to minors and families, creating a bioethical dilemma. Challenge existing science and reasoning must be encouraged to assist individuals who experience a gender identity that rejects their biological sex. This approach would also contribute to the well-being of society.

Katherine's point gets at the heart of what transgenderism is really about: State tyranny.

There's no medical test to diagnose transgender because no one is born in the wrong body; no one is born transgender. It is a lie. And we are talking about the State forcing ALL citizens to participate in that lie.

You established the ideal witness list that we are all still following in our individual states. You lead the way with creative media efforts that each of us have tailored to our individual states and speakers. Your sacrifice of time, energy and resources was the epitome of servant leadership. Your courage to confront this growing abomination in spite of the attacks has fortified many other witnesses and legislative sponsors who have been attached knowing that you have gone before us. The "five smooth stones" appears to be a reference to the biblical myth of David and Goliath (

So the pattern has been that transgender activists say things and create language and everyone just adopts it without question.

My other suggestion with the quote is to add non-binary. Even though transgender has become an umbrella term

MENTAL HEALTH/CO-MORBIDITIES IN GENDER DYSPHORIA

1. THEY ARE PRESENT AND THERE CAN BE MANY.

2015 Finland's gender identity services

- 75% of adolescents [assessed] had been or were currently undergoing child and adolescent psychiatric treatment for reasons other than gender dysphoria
- 26% had an autism spectrum disorder
- 87% were female, far disproportionate to past ratios of F:M.
(Kaltiala-Heino R, Sumia M, Tytilä A, Järvi M, Lindberg N. Two years of gender identity service for minors: overrepresentation of natal girls with severe problems in adolescent development. Child and Adolescent Psychiatry and Mental Health (2015) 9:9.)

2018. Lisa Littman's parental survey of Rapid Onset Gender Dysphoria:

- 62.5% of gender dysphoric adolescents had a psychiatric disorder or neurodevelopmental disability preceding the onset of gender dysphoria.

EXTERNAL EMAIL - USE CAUTION

Dear Team

Attached, at long last, is a Legislative Packet of information and documents that Jane Robbins and I created, with the help, review, and editing of Michelle, to be used in support of the Vulnerable Child Protection Acts being introduced in our respective states.

In this arena there is such ignorance, and misinformation, about the issue of transgenderism that we felt that legislators needed a primer to accurately understand it. We have received permission from the Minnesota Family Institute to use Chapters 1 - 3 of the Parent Resource Guide as such a primer. We then created handouts on the <https://www.familyinstitute.org> issues we know the other side is going to attack us on: 1) the suicide claim, 2) the claim that the medical community widely supports these treatments, and 3) the bad-faith lie (we've already seen in the media) that these interventions are not happening in minors. Representative Christ generously paid for the design work for the handouts to have a similar look to the Parent Resource Guide. Finally, is a generic Whitepaper, based on the SD and GA white papers we all worked on.

Our goal was to create a packet of information (well researched, full of citations, and formatted to catch the eye with the major points) that will educate and inform our legislators and supporting organizations, but also will arm them with ready answers for the major attacks of misinformation that will be thrown at them. Attached are the following:

Claiming that social transition (name, pronouns, clothes, hair) is quasi-medical and causative of "persistent" gender dysphoria is now a common argument

This argument has since been used in numerous ADF and CPRC-linked cases; it's based on a misreading of a study of associations and a regression model where this had a minimal association for trans girls and no association at all for trans boys Jamie is 100% correct. For these Libertarians, we should point out there is a host of things government appropriately takes off of parents' shoulders because it sends a societal message of the potential harm or importance to children if too much decision-making is reposed in the hands of developing humans at too early an age. Hence, parents need not fight with children about having to attend school, taking the car keys out of their hands before age 16 and legal drivers license awarded, drinking before age 21, illegal drugs, entering into most contracts, and others. Parents can rely on sound laws to back them up against the immature and manipulable wants and decisions of their minor children. That's a good thing.

Great talking point, in my view.

In answer to James's question below, a Florida judge's order to discharge all legal documents for an MTF male with Klinefelter Syndrome should not be binding in Alabama, but I can see that setting up a potential challenge regarding comity, full faith and credit, etc., depending on Alabama's exact statutory language.

Not sure who besides the Alabama Department of Public Health would have standing here, but I do not think a general member of the public would.

I have reached out to contacts in Alabama, to apprise the Alabama AG of the situation, and suggest their office or the ADPH Office of Counsel look into this case, and potentially send a letter to this judge or otherwise take action.

If we have a document on Klinefelter Syndrome with the science all footnoted I could forward, that would be helpful.

All,

There has been some misinformation circulating on the web that my board certification was "revoked".

That is incorrect. I was board certified in Internal Medicine in 2005 and Endocrinology in 2006 by the ABIM. This used to be a lifetime certification. But they changed the rules around so that if you graduated at a certain time, then you have to recertify every 10 years. They call it "Maintenance of Certification". It's a very expensive and time consuming process. And frankly BS, because no one who trained me has to recertify, as they have been grandfathered in.

So I joined with a bunch of other doctors who had formed an alternative board certification group. And I recertified with them instead in 2018. I have attached that certification. If you look me up on the site it will say pending, because I just put in my reapplication on Jan 3. You have to recertify every 2 years. But its a far less expensive process and only requires doing CME, just as it had always been!

<https://nbpas.org/>

I also post these credentials on my website:
<http://www.dr.laidlaw.com/site/about.html>

Hope that clarifies if it comes up.

p. 1862, Laidlaw argues "Doctors who willfully harm patients are criminals", Lappert admits circumcision is "cosmetic" but claims it's okay because "in all cases it is intended to serve the "gender" of the boy; that is it is in the service of the masculine sex"

Circumcision, having many historic dimensions, has also many justifications. The Mosaic covenant ceremony being the first, it has also been proposed in the past as a way of reducing cervical cancer. For most, it is cosmetic (I want my boy to look like the other boys). There is no strictly valid medical indication apart from phimosis/stricture.

Regardless of the "indication" for circumcision, the key element to be remembered is that in all cases it is intended to serve the "gender" of the boy; that is it is in the service of the masculine sex, and meant to usher them into the right function of man as father and husband in their particular culture. IT IS NOT A PROCEDURE THAT, BY ITS NATURE, DESTROYS THE REPRODUCTIVE FACULTY.

Here is my version rebutting the argument that this bill will cause an interference in the patient-physician relationship:

Doctors who willfully harm patients are criminals. If a doctor drugs a patient unconscious and surgically removes her 14 year old, healthy breasts, this is a criminal act. The 14 year old cannot freely give consent to this procedure as she does not have the capacity to know what her self at age 25 or 30 years old would want. She can never have functional breasts replaced. Women who thought they were trans have regretted this happened to them. One such woman uses donor milk because she is physically incapable of producing milk after her mastectomy.

We also need to stress the point the the ACLU is entirely missing the point of this bill - it nothing to do with discriminating against any class of children, but rather everything to do with protecting a vulnerable group of children, and all children (given the social contagion). While there may be a constitutional right to refuse to carry a child to term (under Roe), there is no constitutional right to chemically and surgically mutilating one's healthy body, where there is no disease to be treated - that is child abuse.

When would you need this?

Appreciate that Gary. I will definitely keep that in mind from here on out. I will keep those thoughts to our group.

The key again is for Fred to show that these procedures do not constitute part of the normal doctor-patient relationship (which is what the other side is trying to argue). The minor cannot provide meaningful consent. And therefore the physician who performs these procedures and prescribes these meds for the specific purpose of "gender change" has committed a crime.

I'll leave it to the legal and legislative people to figure out how to best put these concepts into words that will convince the governor that she has strong reasoning to sign the bill.

Question for the Kelsey Klan along with the rest of the team. The impossibility of truly informed consent from a minor and the coercion of parents (would you want a live son or a dead daughter, etc.) are solid points we have used. Do you think it unwise, in this particular context, to also bring up that sometimes the parents have their own issues (narcissism, Munchausen's by proxy, etc.), in which case the child is again at unprotected risk? That's the reason that watchful waiting involves psychological evaluation of the family and its dynamic as well as that of the child patient. Or is bringing that up in this context too easily used by opponents as, "So you're saying the bad guys are the medical professionals AND parents both?" We are trying to gain allies here, not carelessly discard them.

Thanks,
Andre

My daughter's gender clinician snidely dismissed my concerns and told me I had a choice between blockers and a mental hospital. It is impossible for a parent to make an informed choice when all of the medical associations and your own trusted physician is telling you these drugs are not only safe, but vital to prevent your child's suicide. Parents have to understand what that pressure feels like to realize why "informed consent" is simply not true.

This is not healthcare, this is medical experimentation.

I think the sterilization abuse framework from our whitepaper on historical eugenics practices might be a good opening approach. It also addresses the main problem with blockers and hormones in younger patients, which is a lot more likely to be going on in SD, in the younger group of children covered by the proposed legislation.

http://womensliberationfront.org/wp-content/uploads/2020/01/Eugenics-Then-and-Now-1-26-2020_formatted.pdf

I think keeping the focus on sterilization is valuable because it's already been recognized as a problem, I have already had a federal funding restriction enacted on it for over 40 years, for anyone under 21. It's a direct answer, as well, to the claim that the drugs used in gender procedures should be allowed because they're supposedly less invasive.

But they're in most cases going to be as functionally impactful as surgery when administered before maturation of the gonads. The effective metabolic difference between removing the ovaries or testes with surgery, or deactivating them permanently with drugs, is minimal. Menopause is about the same if it comes through organ shutdown or surgical means, though surgery is more abrupt.

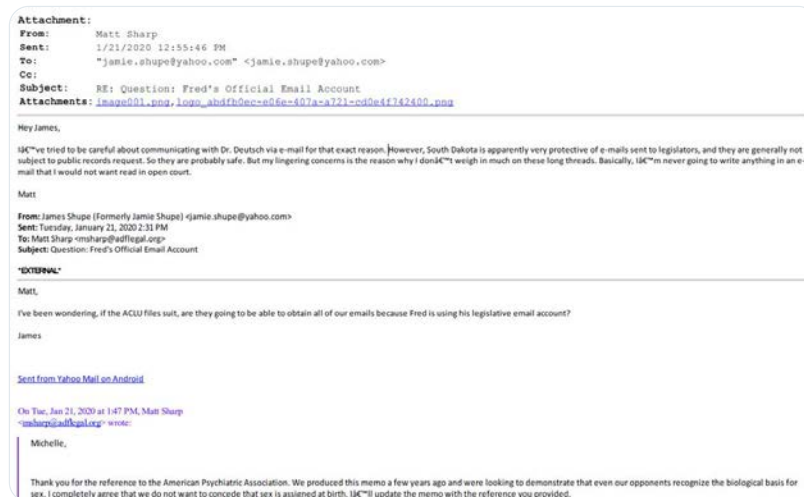

Also, I've removed Greg and Kara from this reply, as well.

The trans shills at the AP only managed to use the word "gender" 11 times in that piece.

"children who do not identify with their biological gender."

For the uninitiated, AP even has a stylebook about how to speak the language of trans.

In a nutshell: Sex is real, physical ... gender is SUBJECTIVE heavily rooted in sex stereotypes - we can have feminine appearing men; masculine appearing women but sex trumps gender in sports (and really generally). Gender is a poisonous word.

James, thank you for taking the time, not just to review the materials, but to think deeply and critically about them.

All of you comments need feedback and dialog.

Let me start by saying I reviewed the Illinois bill and spoke with its sponsor Rep. Tom Morrison. The Illinois bill is 34 pages long. Ours is 2 pages! I think we are getting it down to a very concise bill.

The white paper is not the bill, but is only information I am providing legislators during my educational coffee tours to meet with them this summer and fall.

The most recent version of the bill is attached. Some of the most significant changes on page 1:

Line 84C we define child as age 15 and under. Purely political calculation. If we use age 18, the bill will likely die a quick death.

Line 183K defined sex. The next version will change it to be based on genital sex organs. We eliminated sexual identity.

Line 234C we substantially narrowed the bill, changing it from it being any person to any mental healthcare provider or any doctor (actually, a list of licensed providers).

Line 263C changed the focus of the bill to be attempting to change or affirm the child's perception of their sex ...

On page 2, I understand your comments about using the word "transsexual" but I think it is okay since it refers to those that induce infertility.

Please provide me your feedback about the above in relation to the attached bill. Thanks for your help! - Fred

A thought to share while it's on my mind. I don't remember if you got to witness the blow-out I had with the transsexual that Fred had testifying on behalf of his bill, but I think getting into bed with folks who are still actively "identifying" as the opposite sex and or haven't made any formal efforts to reclaim their birth sex, etc., is a really bad idea, and I highly discourage it. Not to mention, you run the risk of them turning over all the communications to entities such as the ACLU as they're happening or later.

In this case, I'm referring to Scott Newgent, the female that still identifies as a male.

It's essentially putting someone on the witness stand and having them say "this is bad unless you're doing it like I am as an adult." This is a really bad strategy when the opposition is making the case that they're creating a better version of that person who's gonna suffer less and be spared the surgeries, have time to change their mind, etc.

See where I'm going with this?

So I not only think this is a bad idea, I flat out don't trust these folks.

In response to James's™ question, individuals aged 15 or younger in South Dakota are not legally able to consent to sexual activity, and such activity may result in prosecution for statutory rape. South Dakota statutory rape law is violated when a person has consensual sexual intercourse with an individual under age 16. A child petitioning for emancipation must be at least sixteen years old in SD. That's the landscape. -- Fred

I want to respond to two issues raised in previous emails. First, Jamie's comment about puberty desistance data and "gender dysphoria." It is important to note that these studies are not reflecting what has been happening over the past few years.

As those of us on the front lines have observed, many/most of the children and young adults caught up in this new epidemic do not have "gender dysphoria." Some do not even try to appear as the opposite sex in their appearance. It is a very curious phenomenon when the "gender expression" does not even match the "gender identity." It seems much more akin to an identity crisis/disorder. So the desistance data from years ago, that just studied very young kids (mostly boys) cannot be extrapolated to this new emergence. Just today, I received a story from a father of a kindergartner who asserted her identity out of the blue. There is no dysphoria. No opposite sex behaviors. Just an asserted identity.

Similarly, the adolescent and young adult emergence is also not always preceded by GD. Some exhibit signs after the trans identity; some never do. On top of this is the increasing prevalence of non-binary identities that are being medicalized, in which GD is not part of the conversation at all.

The research will not be able to reflect these anecdotal observations for many years, but I believe they are critical to consider when messaging. So please consider there are many different pathways to these identities and that the research that we do have does not reflect what is happening in real time. I tried to distinguish these different demographics and pathways on the KC website (which Michelle Cretella, Lisa Littman, Mike Bailey, and Sasha Ayad have reviewed and approved): <https://www.kelseycoalition.org/identity-medicine>

Second, 100% agree that older teens need protection from these medical interventions. I also wish we could go further and protect young adults whose brains are still developing and are even more at risk because of the current informed consent model in which hormonal treatments may be initiated in only one visit. But I will defer to Fred's political savvy on this and do hope that the age limit will be raised to at least 18.

And great work, Fred! That is fantastic news about sponsorship! -KC

Fred and all, I agree with Vernadette on the definition of a child. If the age is to be defined at 15 and younger, then what about those under the age of majority that are excluded? Vernadette is absolutely correct that this population is just as vulnerable, albeit on a different level. They are still minors and to "negotiate" an age is to compromise... which leaves older teens without a voice to speak for them. And, what about the parents and their rights of these older teens who may not be aware of "therapist" that the teen is seeking out in private?

I am witnessing firsthand an alarming increase in the rate of teens (in this age range) with suicidal attempts and drug overdoses in the PICU. We will be leaving them to the wolves if the age for this bill is not raised to the age of majority.

I've read the much streamlined version and I have significant concerns about adding a definition for "child" at the outset that means 15 or younger.

First, the other side has worked hard to lower the protections society provides to children in multiple areas by creating the perception that pre-adults who are 16 and 17 are no longer "children" (i.e., abortion, sexual consent, contraception, consent to gender treatments). Yet, all of us know this is dangerously untrue — this is often the timeline when children need the most protection and guidance from parents and adults because of what is being thrown at them. At minimum, I do not believe we should open with a definition of "child" that directly plays into the oppositions long-game. If indeed you want to keep this age cut off, then you can simply specify "a child age fifteen or younger" on line 25.

Second, it would be very helpful for us to understand why the arbitrary cut off at age 16, rather than the long-standing age of majority of 18 (which is still too young developmentally to make such decisions, but the law leaves us no choice). Is there some other analogous situation in SD law that makes 16 a logical cut off? What specific concerns (other than this bill is going to be hard to pass) or explanations for this cut off age are you hearing?

It's important to understand this. Because I fear you are now running into two different risks — that by having negotiating against your best judgment from the outset, you give yourself nothing to negotiate away during the legislative process. And, that by so watering down the bill, it may fail to elicit the support and excitement of the stakeholders you need to have standing beside you to pass this bill. I talked briefly with the Ex Dir of the Family Heritage Alliance and he asked whether this bill will be worth coming out for the fight. I said "yes" to the earlier version. I feel less confidence he and others will agree if you start by giving away 16 and 17-year olds right from the outset, as opposed to at least holding that in the pocket.

"I talked briefly with the Ex Dir of the Family Heritage Alliance [...] I feel less confidence he and others will agree if you start by giving away 16 and 17-year olds right from the outset, as opposed to at least holding that in the pocket."

They're talking about politically trading specific age ranges of transgender human beings as a negotiation with other politicians

I've rarely seen anything that grim. That's fucking cold, Jamie Reed's lawyer

I need to go become less pissed off or something

Jamie,

I and Michael Laidlaw spent an entire day in Sacramento with Jackie/Rene and had several/many e-mail exchanges with him. He testified that day along with Michael (admittedly, I was there in case something dropped and I needed to fill in). Also, he was shopping for prices on detransing surgeries, waiting on Medicare to kick in, and seemed to be considering the timing to detrans. He's got rough edges 0 plenty and admits it. He mostly lives in Viet Nam these days, which is no place to engage elective surgeries. Yes, he's surely a work in progress. I don't know Scott - though I suspect diagnostic items about Scott - so I cannot compare them.

I think the elitism and emotional lability of the way trans activists reflects narcissism, narcissistic wounding, emotional immaturity, adverse childhood events, and so forth. All here know the studies showing enormous rates of personality disorders, most likely narcissistic, and Zucker and Blanchard don't seem shy about saying that either. But, we can't fix personality disorders for someone else.

I'm reading in Proverbs these days and there are repeated verses about holding one's tongue, not engaging the foolish, and so forth, so for this SD battle and likely the one's in Texas and Georgia, I'll be focusing on holding my tongue while simply maintaining certain lines without dismissing people. Narcissists who don't get their way but are not dismissed outright have a tendency of moving on when they see they simply won't get to be the prima donna of the opera.

Jamie,

Despite the fact that it has been through a bank of constitutional attorneys multiple time, the phrase has caused me hesitation from the start and still does.
We cannot say biological sex, as that fuels the other side to say, &Csee, they know there are other sexes.&C
Maybe:
&Cattempting to change the child&C's acceptance of their natal sex or to affirm the child&C's perception if other than their natal sex&C
But then it&C's sort of a mess.

I really think you need to add the word "biological" or even "biological birth sex" to this. Otherwise, they're going to possibly twist this around and claim the child's distorted perception is the correct one. After all, sex is used in lieu of gender these days on many government documents and nearly all current lawsuits state gender identity is the determining factor of a person's sex.
Is this just me, or is anyone else seeing this potential problem too?

IMO, as Fred pointed out earlier, the definition of sex in the bill as " the biological state of being female or male, based on sex organs, chromosomes, and endogenous hormone profiles" - covers all bases. A boy who perceives himself as a girl and requests blockers & estrogen will be denied under this bill.
"Biological sex" is redundant and may be used to imply there are other sexes like a social sex; "natal or birth sex" implies sex can change before or after birth ...

Understood, and I know exceptionally good attorneys have gone over and over this. It is very specific to perception of sex, which is good. I also wondered about the need for such surgeries in trauma victims, but you also specified non-diseased, so that would seem ok. It's just that if we are a bit confused and have misgivings, one wonders what the actual legislators will think. Perhaps part of the problem is we were dealing with the longer version for so long that now seeing such a condensed bill seems a touch bewildering.

The key to the entire bill is the language attempting to change or affirm the child's perception of their sex, with sex defined as the biological state of being female or male. We have to be able to explain the application.

So let's say we have a teenage girl:

1. She perceives she is a boy.
 - a. Doctors cannot perform any of the restricted surgical procedures or give restricted meds (PB & cross-sex hormones) that affirm her perception of being a boy.
 - b. Doctors cannot perform any of the restricted surgical procedures or give restricted meds (PB & cross-sex hormones) that change her perception of being a boy. (I'm not sure this is applicable. Thoughts?)
2. She perceives she is a girl.
 - a. Doctors cannot perform any of the restricted surgical procedures or give restricted meds (PB & cross-sex hormones) that affirm her perception of being a girl. (This scenario would mean there is congruity between body and mind. Bill is probably not applicable.)
 - b. Doctors cannot perform any of the restricted surgical procedures or give restricted meds (PB & cross-sex hormones) that change her perception of being a girl. (This scenario would mean there is congruity between body and mind. Bill is probably not applicable.)

I like the idea but I think it helps to further narrow the bill and avoids causing problems with other medical conditions. But does adding the word cause add problems? The other side will certainly argue that you are you to say what's an incorrect perception? The answer, of course, is if perception varies from reality, then it is an incorrect perception (the bill's definition of sex is reality). That said, the process is political. Drivers license is not currently an issue. Allowing transgender students to participate on the opposite biological sex's team has been to our legislature three times and lost each time. Student privacy had been to the legislature once in 2016. It passed but was vetoed by the governor. We are also discussing making it legal for a physician to practice affirmation therapy on minors. The challenge in getting these bills passes is too many buy into transgender ideology. Too few recognize it as a lie.

ACLU of South Dakota opposes House Bill 1057

The ACLU of South Dakota opposes House Bill 1057, a bill that would criminalize doctors for providing medically necessary care for transgender youth.

The bill, which was introduced Tuesday, would make it a felony for medical providers to treat youth consistent with evidence-based treatment protocols. HB 1057 continues the streak of bills that would codify discrimination against transgender youth that the South Dakota Legislature has attempted to pass over the last five years.

p. 2595, SD Rep. Fred Deutsch goes to a courthouse to find a trans minor's name change petition and send it to Laidlaw, Malone, Broyles, McAlister, Sharp, Cretella, Robles, Lappert

He then describes aspects of this trans child's planned medical treatment to them

Subject: Gender Change Petition etc - Judge Powers case.pdf

One of our state's local newspapers ran a legal notice today to change the name and gender-marker of a minor. Since there is no statutory authority to change a gender-marker (the term is foreign to the legislature and to me) I had to Google it, a trip to the courthouse found the petition. See attached.

Of note:

- The petition asked that no public notice be given.
- The judge has already ordered a name change; he believed notice of hearing was necessary before considering the proposed "gender marker" change.
- Petitioners are pro se. But according to FB, Petitioner is an attorney. Petitioners are a divorced lesbian couple. One is biologic mom, other is adoptive parent. Biologic dad had rights terminated in earlier adoption proceeding.
- The petition relies upon SDCL 11-37-5 which governs name changes. There is no separate authority cited for the gender change.
- This is a 13 year old child (will be 14 in two months). The child's Sioux Falls doctor plans to begin him on gender affirming hormones.

One of the challenges in bringing a bill like we are attempting is to show legislators these problems occur in our state. Introducing this document into the hearing will help show legislators we're not just blowing smoke. Good strategic find, I think. ☺" Fred

Okay I think that's about everything I noticed but I'm sure there's other things I didn't recognize and other people will

I can't believe how much work there is to do
